REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: claim 1 is allowable over the prior art of record, because the prior art is silent to a waste energy recovery assembly comprising, a first plate having a first flow channel defined at one side thereof, wherein said first flow channel is configured to allow flow of both anode supply and cathode supply across one side of said plate.

Claim 11, is allowable over the prior art of record, because the prior art is silent to a method of waste energy recovery comprising communicating an oxidant received at an anode supply opening through anode supply flow channels defined at one side of a second plate, and communicating reformat received at a cathode supply opening through cathode supply flow channels defined at said one side of said second plate.

The prior art, such as Zeng U.S. Patent 6,461,754, teaches a solid polymer electrolyte fuel cell having a coolant circulation circuit made up of a coolant flow field plate with channels having a major region divided into a corresponding plurality of divisional regions that can be differentiated in temperature gradient (abstract and Fig. 1). However, the reference is silent to a water recovery assembly comprising a first plate configured to allow flow of both anode and cathode supply across one side of a plate. The reference is also silent to a method of waste energy recovery comprising communicating an oxidant received at an anode supply opening in a second plate through anode supply flow channels defined at one side of a second plate, and communicating a reformat received at a cathode supply opening in said second plate through cathode supply flow channels defined at said one side.

The remaining claims are allowable based on their dependency on claim 1 or claim 11.
